In this course an individual student does an independent study, under the supervision of an instructor, of a special topic that otherwise cannot be accommodated in the usual course offerings. Proposed projects of Supervised Independent Study must fall within the purview of the Department's interests and capabilities. Specifically, this means that topics must be concerned with the area of traditional rhetorical study: the communication relationships among speaker/writer, text, and audience.

Prerequisites for registration in Rhetoric 199 are: Upper-Class standing (60 or more units) and an overall Grade Point Average of at least 3.00. This course must be taken on a Pass/Not Pass basis only. The student must register for 1-3 units. All work for the course must be completed and submitted to the supervising instructor no later than the last day of instruction for the semester. Failure to do so will result in a grade of Not Pass. This course may not be used to satisfy requirements for the Rhetoric Major. The total units in 199 courses in all departments for any one semester may not exceed four units.
